4	(b) jungle	Wild vs captivity.
5	(d) stars	A free sky.
6	(d) third person	He describes the tiger.
7	(a) softly and quietly	Velvet-like paws.
8	(c) sympathy	He sees the tiger as a prisoner.
9	(d) sad and thoughtful	A sense of loss.
10	(b) stalking	Prowling restlessly.

SECTION — B (Very Short Answer) — Answers — 4 × 2 = 8

Q.	Expected Answer / Value Points	Marks
11	He moves softly on padded feet (1) as if stalking prey, showing suppressed rage (1).	1+1
12	The sound of patrolling cars (1) which reminds him of the zoo (1).	1+1
13	His anger is suppressed (1) as he cannot act on it (1).	1+1
14	He would lurk near the water hole (1) to hunt plump deer (1).	1+1

SECTION — C (Short Answer) — Answers — 4 × 3 = 12

Q.	Expected Answer / Value Points	Marks
15	He describes strong stripes and soft steps (1). He mentions rage (1). The tiger remains dignified (1).	1+1+1
16	It shows stealth (1). It suggests latent power (1). It makes the tiger vivid (1).	1+1+1

Mistakes to avoid:

- Writing that the tiger is happy in the zoo; the poem shows his rage and frustration in captivity, stalking his cage on 'pads of velvet'.
- Mixing the contrast: in the wild, the tiger would be lurking in the long grass near a water hole, hunting plump deer.
- Calling the poem an attack on one cruel keeper; it is a sympathetic comment on keeping wild animals confined.
- Missing the poetic device: contrast between jungle and cage; also alliteration and imagery such as 'quiet rage'.
- Saying the poet is Robert Frost; the poet is Leslie Norris.
- Spelling slips: tiger, cage, lurking, stalking, captivity.

Evaluator's note: Award step marks as shown; accept any correct alternative method. In internal-choice questions, evaluate only the option attempted. Deduct up to ½ mark for missing units or figures where required.
