SECTION — B (Very Short Answer) — Answers — 4 × 2 = 8

| Q. | Expected Answer / Value Points | Marks |
|---|---|---|
| 11 | Images persuade more effectively than slogans (1) and invite readers to feel for themselves (1). | 1+1 |
| 12 | The tiger is dangerous in the wild (1) yet pitiable in captivity (1). | 1+1 |
| 13 | It stands for restriction in general (1) including constraints on human freedom (1). | 1+1 |
| 14 | It sets up a contrast between ideal and real (1) and builds a rhythm of protest (1). | 1+1 |

SECTION — C (Short Answer) — Answers — 4 × 3 = 12

| Q. | Expected Answer / Value Points | Marks |
|---|---|---|
| 15 | The jungle imagery is vivid and active (1). The cage imagery is static (1). The contrast makes his loss tragic (1). | 1+1+1 |
| 16 | Few words (1). Sharp images (1). Strong emotional effect (1). | 1+1+1 |
| 17 | In spite of the cage, he looked proud (1). Visitors laughed whereas he glared (1). He stalked as though he were hunting (1). | 1+1+1 |
| | OR: It attributes human feelings (1). It strengthens empathy (1). But it may oversimplify animal experience (1). | 1+1+1 |

| | OR: Setting (1). Memory (1). The hunt (1). Capture (1). Present longing (1). | 2+2+1 |

Mistakes to avoid:

- Writing that the tiger is happy in the zoo; the poem shows his rage and frustration in captivity, stalking his cage on 'pads of velvet'.
- Mixing the contrast: in the wild, the tiger would be lurking in the long grass near a water hole, hunting plump deer.
- Calling the poem an attack on one cruel keeper; it is a sympathetic comment on keeping wild animals confined.
- Missing the poetic device: contrast between jungle and cage; also alliteration and imagery such as 'quiet rage'.
- Saying the poet is Robert Frost; the poet is Leslie Norris.
- Spelling slips: tiger, cage, lurking, stalking, captivity.

Evaluator's note: Award step marks as shown; accept any correct alternative method. In internal-choice questions, evaluate only the option attempted. Deduct up to ½ mark for missing units or figures where required.
