Mistakes to avoid:

- Mixing up Young Italy (Mazzini, Marseilles, 1831) with Young Europe (Berne, 1834); both are secret societies but different ones.
- Writing that the Congress of Vienna (1815) was hosted by Bismarck or Napoleon; it was hosted by Metternich of Austria.
- Treating the Napoleonic Code (1804) as part of the 1789 Revolution, or forgetting that it also exported to the regions he conquered.
- Saying Germany and Italy were unified in the same way: Germany by Prussia under Bismarck (wars with Denmark, Austria, France), Italy by Sardinia-Piedmont (Cavour, Garibaldi, Victor Emmanuel II).
- Using 'liberalism' in its modern sense; in the 19th century it meant individual freedom and equality before law, but the vote went only to property-owning men.
- Forgetting the key dates: 1789 (French Revolution), 1815 (Vienna), 1848 (revolutions of the liberals), 1871 (Wilhelm I proclaimed German Emperor at Versailles).
