Mistakes to avoid:

- Saying that gender division is biological: the chapter stresses that it is based on social expectations and stereotypes, not on biology.
- Mixing up sexual division of labour (work split by gender) with 'sex ratio' (number of females per 1000 males).
- Writing that India has an official religion; India is a secular state, with no religion given special status.
- Thinking that communalism means practising a religion; it means using religion as the basis of politics and treating one's own religion as superior.
- Claiming that caste alone decides how people vote; the chapter shows that caste is only one factor and voters also consider party and performance.
- Believing that caste has disappeared with urbanisation; caste inequality continues, though it has weakened, and caste in politics can help as well as harm.

Evaluator's note: Award step marks as shown; accept any correct alternative method. In internal-choice questions, evaluate only the option attempted. Deduct up to ½ mark for missing units or figures where required.
