The camel is called the 'ship of the desert'. It can walk for many days on hot sand without drinking water. It stores fat, not water, in its hump. When it cannot find food, the body uses this fat for energy.

A camel's body is made for the desert. Its long eyelashes and two rows of lashes protect the eyes from blowing sand. It can close its nostrils during a sandstorm. Its feet are wide and soft, so they do not sink in the sand.

People of Rajasthan use camels to carry loads and to travel long distances. Camel milk is also drunk by many families. Every year, the famous Camel Fair is held at Pushkar, where thousands of people come to see decorated camels.
