SECTION — A (Reading: 20 Marks) — 20 Marks

Read the passages and answer the questions that follow.

1. Read the passage carefully and answer the questions that follow. 10

A hundred years ago, news travelled slowly. A letter might take a week to cross the country, and a telegram was sent only in an emergency. Today a photograph clicked in a village can reach another continent in a few seconds. Speed has become the pride of our age, but it has also changed how we listen.

When people received a single letter, they read it several times and replied with care. Today a hundred messages arrive in an hour, and most are answered with a quick emoji or not at all. The result is that we know a great deal about many people and very little about any one of them.

Conversation suffers the most. At a family meal, one can often see each member looking at a small screen instead of at one another. Grandparents wait to tell a story, and no one hears. This does not mean that technology is to blame. It means that we have to choose when to put it aside. A fixed 'no-phone' hour at dinner or on Sundays can bring back the lost habit of listening, which is the beginning of friendship.

(i) A hundred years ago, a letter might take: 1

(a) a year (b) a week to cross the country
(c) an hour (d) a minute

(ii) The writer says that today we know: 1

(a) much about one person (b) nothing about anybody
(c) a lot about many people and little about any one (d) everything about everybody

(iii) According to the passage, conversation suffers because: 1

(a) people speak too loudly (b) people look at screens instead of each other
(c) families are small (d) there are no meals

(iv) 'Pride of our age' refers to: 1

(a) speed (b) telegrams (c) silence (d) letters
