2	7, Moti Nagar Jaipur 12 November 2026 The Editor The Pink City News Jaipur Subject: Noise pollution in Moti Nagar Sir/Madam, I wish to draw the attention of the authorities to the noise pollution in Moti Nagar. Loudspeakers at wedding halls and vehicles honking at all hours make life difficult for residents. Students find it hard to study, and the sick and the elderly cannot rest. I request the police to enforce the rules on loudspeakers after 10 p.m. and to fine drivers who use pressure horns. Citizens too should cooperate for a peaceful neighbourhood. 3	Respect for Elders Good morning respected teachers and friends. In our culture, we are taught to touch the feet of elders and seek their blessings. This is not just a custom; it is a way of saying thank you to those who have worked for our happiness. Our grandparents carry a treasure of stories, experience and wisdom. They teach us patience, honesty and faith. Parents sacrifice their comforts for our education. Teachers guide us toward a bright future. In return, they expect nothing but love and respect. Yet nowadays some young people argue rudely and ignore their grandparents. Let us change this. Let us listen to elders carefully, speak politely and help them whenever needed. A society which respects its elders is a strong and happy one. Thank you. (Content 2 · Organisation 1 · Expression/Style 1 · Accuracy 1)	5

	OR: Yoga: A Gift to the World by Isha/Ishan, Class 9 Yoga, born in ancient India, is now practised in every part of the world. It joins body, mind and spirit and keeps a person healthy and calm. Simple postures like Tadasana and Vajrasana improve flexibility and posture, while breathing exercises such as Pranayama increase lung capacity and reduce stress. Regular practice improves concentration, which helps students in studies. It also builds discipline. The best time for yoga is early morning, on an empty stomach, in a quiet place. Even twenty minutes a day can make a difference. Since 2015, the International Day of Yoga on 21 June has reminded the world of its benefits. Let us make yoga a part of our daily life. (Content 2 · Organisation 1 · Expression/Style 1 · Accuracy 1)	5
4	I still remember my first day at my new school. The building was large, and the corridors were crowded with unfamiliar faces. My heart was pounding as I entered Class 9. The teacher, Mrs Gupta, welcomed me warmly and asked me to introduce myself. My voice shook, but I managed to say my name and where I had come from. At first, no one spoke to me. During recess I sat alone, feeling terribly homesick. Then a boy named Aman came over and shared his lunch. 'Come and play with us,' he said. I joined their cricket game, and soon we were laughing like old friends. By the end of the day my fear had gone. I returned home, and told my mother, 'It was fun!' She smiled with relief. That day taught me that a single kind gesture can make a stranger feel at home, and I try to do the same for every new student. (Content 2 · Organisation 1 · Expression 2 · Accuracy 1)	6
	OR: On his way to school, Rahul saw a leather wallet lying on the road. He picked it up and found five hundred rupees, an identity card and some photographs. He was tempted to keep the money, for he wanted to buy a new cricket bat. But he remembered his father's words: 'A little honesty is worth more than much wealth.' He looked at the identity card and found the owner's name and address. After school, he went to the address, which was only two streets away. An old man opened the door. When Rahul handed the wallet over, the man's eyes filled with tears. 'I was searching for it all day,' he said. 'The money is my month's medicine.' The old man tried to reward Rahul, but the boy refused. Next day, the old man came to school and told the Principal about the boy's honesty. Rahul was praised in the assembly, and he learnt that honesty brings its own reward. (Content 2 · Organisation 1 · Expression 2 · Accuracy 1)	6
