| 3 | Discipline: The Key to SuccessGood morning everybody. Discipline is the thread that holds the pearls of success. A disciplined student reaches school on time, completes homework and respects teachers. A disciplined nation follows its laws and keeps its streets clean.Discipline does not mean fear or punishment. It means choosing what is right even when no one is watching. Consider soldiers, who rise at dawn and march with precision, or a sportsman who practises for hours. Their victories are born of daily self-control.We can begin with small steps: make a routine, keep our belongings in order and queue patiently. Let us not break rules for convenience. If we follow discipline today, we shall build a happy tomorrow. Thank you.(Content 2 · Organisation 1 · Expression/Style 1 · Accuracy 1) | 5 |

| | OR: Trees: Our Silent Friendsby Sahil/Sakshi, Class 9Trees give us oxygen, fruit, wood and shade. They absorb harmful gases, cool the air and hold the soil with their roots. A single large tree can provide enough oxygen for several people.Despite these benefits, forests are being cut for roads, factories and houses. As a result, the temperature rises, rainfall is irregular and animals lose their homes. Floods and landslides become more common.We must reverse the damage. Plant a sapling on your birthday and care for it. Insist on 'one tree for each one cut'. Schools can adopt a nearby park. Remember: when the last tree dies, the last human will not be far behind. Let us plant today for a better tomorrow.(Content 2 · Organisation 1 · Expression/Style 1 · Accuracy 1) | 5 |
| 4 | Last summer, my family went to Mount Abu to escape the heat of the plains. As our car climbed the winding road, the air grew cooler, and the green valleys spread below us like a carpet.We stayed in a small cottage near Nakki Lake. In the morning, we took a boat ride and watched the mist rise from the water. In the afternoon, we walked to the Dilwara Temples and admired the marble carvings. In the evening, we sat at Sunset Point, where the sun slipped slowly behind the hills, painting the sky in orange and pink.On the last day, we bought woollen caps and honey from local stalls. I felt sad to return, but the trip gave me a new energy. Standing among the hills, I realised how small we are and how beautiful nature is. I hope to visit again soon.(Content 2 · Organisation 1 · Expression 2 · Accuracy 1) | 6 |
| | OR: Tina was a clever girl who loved sweets. One day she saw her classmate Kabir carrying a large box of laddoos he had won in a quiz. He was walking proudly up the stairs.'Kabir,' Tina said, 'I have heard you have the most wonderful voice. Won't you sing a song for us?' Kabir was flattered. He put the box on the step and cleared his throat to sing. Tina picked up the box and said with a smile, 'Thank you! Your voice is lovely, but your wisdom needs some practice.'Kabir was hurt, but soon he laughed. 'You tricked me,' he said, 'but I learnt a lesson.' Tina returned the box, saying, 'I only wished to teach you not to trust flatterers.' They shared the laddoos together. Moral: Beware of those who praise us for their own benefit.(Content 2 · Organisation 1 · Expression 2 · Accuracy 1) | 6 |
