SECTION — A (Reading: 20 Marks) — 20 Marks

Read the passages and answer the questions that follow.

1. Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions that follow. 10

In a narrow lane of a Rajasthan town, an old potter named Hari Ram still turns his wheel at dawn. His hands, thick with clay, know how much pressure a pot needs before it begins to bend. His grandfather made pots, so did his father, and he has always thought that his son would one day do the same. But the son has gone to the city to work in a factory. 'The pot is cheaper than the plastic jug,' says Hari Ram, 'but nobody counts the hours.'

India has thousands of such crafts: weaving, block printing, pottery, metal work, wood carving and embroidery. For centuries they have fed families and given beauty to daily life. Today many of them are fading. Machines produce goods faster and cheaper; young people see little respect and little money in the old trades; and customers rarely stop to ask who made the cloth or the cup that they use.

Yet there are signs of change. Some designers now work with village artisans and bring their patterns to a wider market. Online shops allow a weaver in a small town to sell directly to buyers in distant cities. Schools in some places invite craftspeople to teach children for a day, and the children return with clay under their nails and a new respect in their eyes.

What can a buyer do? Choose handmade goods when possible and pay a fair price. Ask where an item was made. Visit craft fairs. A craft survives only as long as someone is willing to buy its work and someone is willing to learn it. Both of these depend, in the end, on all of us.

(i) Hari Ram's son has gone to the city to: 1

(a) learn weaving (b) work in a factory

(c) study (d) sell pots

(ii) 'Nobody counts the hours' means: 1

(a) the potter works little (b) customers are punctual

(c) pots are made quickly (d) people do not value the time and skill that goes into the work

(iii) One reason why crafts are fading is that: 1

(a) crafts are banned (b) there are no customers abroad

(c) raw material is expensive (d) machines make goods faster and cheaper

(iv) How do online shops help artisans? 1

(a) They provide clay (b) They set prices

(c) They let artisans sell directly to distant buyers (d) They provide training

(v) A craft survives only as long as: 1

(a) fairs are held (b) there are buyers and learners

(c) machines are costly (d) the government exists

(vi) What kinds of crafts are named in the passage? Name two. 1

(vii) What do children gain when craftspeople visit their school? 1

(viii) What can a buyer do to help a craft survive? Mention one. 1

(ix) Find a word in the passage which means 'skilled workers who make things by hand'. 1

(x) Find a word in the passage which means 'becoming weaker or disappearing slowly'. 1

2. Read the following case and answer the questions that follow. 10
